

“Teach Us to Pray”
A Series of Sermons on Prayer

Worship at Mars Hill

The words of the Lord’s Prayer are some of the first we memorize as children. We say them each week, if not each day. But what is really at stake when we pray the words our Savior taught us: “Our Father, who art in heaven...”? Beginning September 7 during worship, we’ll move beyond the simple familiarity of the Lord’s Prayer, and plumb the rich depths of Jesus’s words, stopping to look at some of the scriptures that informed his instructions and that show his teachings being put into practice. And, along the way, by God’s grace, we will claim—or reclaim—the sort of boldness Jesus gave us permission to claim when we approach God in prayer.
